UNITED FOR CHILDHOOD SUCCESS

Did you know that children who are not reading at grade level by the end of third grade are four times more likely to drop out of high school? Or that over the last decade, 37 percent of third-graders in Chemung and Steuben counties were not reading at grade level? The goal of our Kids on Track initiative is to ensure all children are reading at grade level by age 8, so they are set up for success in school, work and life. We are pulling together the critical players and thinkers needed to ensure kids have the best chance.

School Readiness:

Children start learning at birth. By encouraging the social, physical and emotional development of young children, we lay the foundation for their success in school and life.

Did you know? By age 4, children who live in higher-income households have heard 30 million more words than children from low-income households.

Summer Learning Loss:

During the summer, children need to stay engaged to prevent losses in literacy and other academic areas. Learning programs can mitigate loss and even provide academic gains.

Did you know? By the end of summer, students perform, on average, one to two months behind where they left off in the spring.

School Attendance:

Chronic absence in grades K-2 has been proven to dramatically impact the level of reading proficiency achieved by third grade. Absences ultimately negatively impact students' competitiveness and graduation rates.

Did you know? In our local school districts, data shows the rate of children chronically absent in the early grades (K-3) is nearly twice that of the national average.

UNITED FOR CHILDHOOD SUCCESS

United Way of the Southern Tier

Education is the first step to bridging the opportunity divide.

Giving children the skills to succeed in school sets them up for lifelong success and lays a foundation that will span generations to come.

Providing parents with trusted knowledge and tools allows them to be engaged and help the next generation thrive.

Education is the change that lasts!

UNITED FOR BASIC NEEDS

United Way is committed to taking care of our most vulnerable neighbors. This includes those needing food for themselves and their families, and those needing longer-term shelter, both to prevent and address homelessness.

In Steuben and Chemung Counties, one person in every seven is at risk of food insecurity. Nearly half of all renters spend 35% or more of monthly income on their housing costs.

In addition to meeting basic needs, United Way supports programs that help to educate our neighbors on managing credit, focus on debt reduction, and prepare individuals with knowledge regarding asset-building to provide a more stable future for themselves and their families.

A child's economic circumstances can affect his or her academic success. In the Southern Tier, one in four children under the age of six is living below the poverty level. Where young children are living with a single mother, 59% of those households are living in poverty. That is 20% higher than the New York State average.

For our neighbors aged 65 and older (30,738), 8% are living below the poverty level; that's more than 2,400 seniors.

UNITED FOR BASIC NEEDS

United Way of the Southern Tier

Poverty isn't permanent.

Too many children, their hardworking parents, and neighbors know too well what it's like to live without.

Without food, a home, a job that offers advancement opportunities, transportation, without the knowledge that college is an option.

Without opportunity.

UNITED FOR SENIOR SUPPORTS

United Way is committed to helping our senior population age safely in place. This includes those who need assistance to care for themselves, or in accomplishing their activities of daily living in and around the home. This also includes those who need home-delivered meals to meet their nutritional needs, or need transportation to medical appointments or the grocery store.

In Chemung and Steuben Counties, there are more than 48,000 "Baby Boomers" (people born between 1946 and 1964) who are in or nearing their "Golden Years." According to AARP, nearly three-quarters of all Baby Boomers would like to stay in their own homes, or at least in their own communities, as they age.

Feelings of loneliness and isolation can lead to serious consequences for senior health. In Steuben and Chemung Counties, nearly half of all households of those aged 65 and above are seniors living alone. In addition to providing supports that help the elderly age at home for as long as is safely possible, other programming is available to help seniors remain active and engaged.

Nationwide, over half a million grandparents were the persons with primary responsibility for their grandchildren who lived with them. In Chemung and Steuben Counties, over 1,300 grandparents are raising their grandchildren. United Way is making sure family strengthening supports are available to assist grandparents who are responsible for the young people in their care.

UNITED FOR SENIOR SUPPORTS

Aging doesn't have to be a complex and fearful unknown.

It is important that we support seniors and their desire to age safely in place in an accessible, affordable, and familiar environment.

Many have never asked for help before; many won't ask for help now.
